INTERNATIONAL AWARD
UCLG - MEXICO CITY - CULTURE 21

International Seminar

'Cultural Rights and Peace in the city'

Mexico City

18-20 October 2018

PROGRAMME

Introduction

The Committee on Culture of UCLG has become the leading global platform on culture and sustainable development. The global organization of United Cities and Local Governments – UCLG, has Agenda 21 for culture (2004) as founding document and works with cities around the world with the toolkit “Culture 21 Actions” as the reference document.

We organise the “International Award UCLG - Mexico City – Culture 21” on cultural policies every two years, and we convene a global Summit on Culture also every two years (the first one took place in Bilbao in 2015, the second in Jeju in 2017, the third will happen in Buenos Aires on 10-12 April 2019). We host a unique database of good practices on “Culture in Sustainable Cities”. We also run learning, capacity-building and connectivity programmes to support the elaboration and implementation of cultural policies (Leading Cities and Pilot Cities) and take active part in the advocacy campaigns to support the place of culture in the UN Agenda 2030 and the Sustainable Development Goals.

The activities of the Committee on Culture of UCLG are an important global meeting point of local governments, international organizations, cultural actors, activists and academics that work at the intersection of cultural rights and sustainable local development.

The Seminar “Cultural Rights and Peace in the city” is held on the occasion of the third edition of the “International Award UCLG - Mexico City - Culture 21” and is associated to the annual official meeting of the UCLG Culture Committee.

The seminar “Cultural rights and Peace in the city” has the following specific objectives:

- To discuss the specific implications of cultural rights at the local level, and their relation with the generation of conditions for peace in communities.
- To disseminate the examples of local policies, from cities all around the world, that are already contributing to the exercise of cultural rights in the city
- To highlight the connection between cultural rights, the right to the city and sustainable development in cities
- To highlight the importance to advocate for the cultural component in the international agendas (Agenda 2030 - Sustainable Development Goals and New Urban Agenda)

- To give visibility to the central contribution made by the Mexico City, through its cultural policies and its international involvement, to the global debates on cultural rights, cultural policies and sustainable development.

The Seminar will last two days, with a first part reserved to experts and activist in this area, and a second one open to the publics, in the context of the Zócalo Book International Fair, toward the dissemination to a more global public.

During the first day, the programme will include topics which will combine high-level debate sessions, practical experiences storytelling and small discussions. Issues related to culture and peace will be addressed, both through its conceptual perspective and in its practical implementation. Speakers will be invited to refer to the topics covered by the CDMX Declaration.

The conclusions of the events as well as CDMX Statement on Culture and Peace will be presented during the closing session, in the context of the Zócalo Book Fair.

In brief, we will celebrate three coordinated events in Mexico City on next 18-20 October 2018:

- Award events of the 3rd edition of the “International Award UCLG Mexico City Culture 21”
- International seminar “Cultural Rights and Peace in the city”
