Curriculum vitae – Frédéric Vallier

Frédéric Vallier is Secretary General of the Council of European Municipalities and Regions (CEMR) since 1 February 2010. Confirmed for a new 6 years mandate to start from 1 February 2016.

As an expert in European and international affairs, he has over twenty five years of experience working with European local and regional authorities. He notably campaigned for the recognition of the role of local and regional government in the global agreement on climate change and represents European local and regional authorities within the global task force for post-2015 development agenda. He held a mandate as deputy mayor between 1995 and 2001 in France, his home country.

Frédéric Vallier is fluent in French and English, speaks Italian and has a basic knowledge of German. He holds an Executive Master's Degree in public management from Science Po Paris. Since 2014, he is Vice-president of the European Movement International.

The Council of European Municipalities and Regions (CEMR), created in 1951, is the broadest association of local and regional authorities in Europe. Its members are national associations of local and regional authorities in 41 countries.
